

POLICE NAB ARMED ROBBERY SUSPECT

David Hager

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

A 25-year-old Bourbon County man was arrested Oct. 25 after an alleged carjacking and armed robbery on Barnes Road in Williamstown.

David Hager was charged with kidnapping, first-degree robbery and theft by unlawful taking of an automobile.

The incident began around 12:30 p.m. at St. Elizabeth-Grant County when the suspect allegedly got into a 2000 tan Bravada vehicle and forced the female driver to drive him around for about 10 minutes.

The carjacker then made the driver exit the vehicle on Industrial Road and he proceeded to drive the car to Grant County Drugs on Barnes Road.

The man allegedly went inside the pharmacy wearing two bandanas over his face and a black-hooded sweatshirt and demanded

“He could have shot me, plain and simple. I scared the hell out of him when I walked through the door. I saw him go for his pocket.”

pills while brandishing a handgun. Dawn Haggard of Falmouth walked into Grant County Drugs as the suspect was robbing the pharmacy.

When the bell on the door rang as Haggard walked inside, she said the suspect jumped, turned toward her and reached for his pocket all at the same time.

“He could have shot me, plain and simple,” Haggard said. “I scared the hell out of him when I walked through the door. I saw him go for his pocket.”

Dry Ridge man killed in tractor accident

By Jamie Baker-Nantz

When Chris Ammerman heard the news that his friend, Craig Ruber, had been killed in a tractor accident, he thought it was just another prank that Ruber was notorious for pulling on friends.

“It’s just hard to wrap your head around,” said Ammerman, Grant County’s extension agent for agriculture.

Ruber, 40, of Dry Ridge, was moving hay on a farm he owned on Lightfoot Fork Road in Pendleton County, when a bridge he was driving across collapsed around 5:15 p.m. on Oct. 28.

The bridge collapsed when Ruber crossed it on his tractor, which fell 15 to 20 feet. A portion of the bridge fell on top of him.

Ammerman said Ruber had used the bridge before when he was moving hay or corn from one field to another.

The two men became friends several years ago and Ruber even coached Ammerman’s son in football.

“He was such a great teacher,” Ammerman said. “He could look at someone and no matter what they had in them, he found a way to get them to their greatest potential.”

Grant band earns runner up honors; WHS places fourth at state contest

The Grant County High School Band and the Williamstown Band of Spirit once again took center stage at the Kentucky Music Educators Association state finals at Western Kentucky University on Oct. 27.

Both bands qualified for the evening finals after placing in the top four among 16 other bands in their class earlier in the day.

In the semi-finals, Grant County placed second, only behind Madisonville North Hopkins while WHS placed fourth behind Hazard, Murray and Beechwood.

At the finals, GCHS took home the Class AAAA state runner-up trophy and Williamstown placed fourth in Class A.

This was Grant County's 11th state finals appearance and fourth year in a row to place in state competition.

For the Williamstown Band of Spirit, it was their 11th straight finals appearance.

Two more lawsuits filed against Grant jailer

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Two additional lawsuits have been filed by former employees of Grant County Jailer Terry Peeples, brining the total to four in the past six weeks.

In all, there have been at least six lawsuits filed against Peeples by former or current employees since he took office in January 2011.

The latest lawsuits were filed both on Oct. 24 — one in Grant Circuit Court and one in Boone Circuit Court.

Former Chief Deputy Dennis Bailey alleges that he was falsely accused of wrongdoing and was ultimately fired for bringing to light allegations of illegal conduct at the jail.

Missy Hacker of Dry Ridge, who was hired in July 2011, alleges that she was mistreated and eventually fired after rejecting sexual advances by Peeples.

A reception was held for the couple at the Eagle Creek Country Club.

Invitations will be sent in March.

VEGGIE TALES

John DiGirolamo of Dry Ridge grew this Cucuzza (Sicilian squash) on his Baton Rouge Road farm. It was 68 inches long or 5 1/2 feet. DiGirolamo said they can grow to 6 feet long and are grown on a trellis so they can grow down.

REUNION NOTICES

Dunaway-Milner

The family of Zachary and Emma Dunaway-Milner family reunion will be held at 1 p.m. on Nov. 3 at the Walton Senior Citizen Building. Bring a covered dish.

Vincent

The 28th annual Vincent family reunion was held Oct. 6 at Mammoth Cave National Park in Edmonson County. An annual Vincent family reunion has been held at Mammoth Cave since 1984.

The reunion idea was spearheaded by Howell W. Vincent, a well known Covington attorney.

In the late 1880's and early 1900's, there were 10 sons born to Gillis and Calvernia Vincent, in Edmondson County. Their mother was a believer in education and advanced that idea with her sons. She received an award for having the most sons enrolled at Western University in Bowling Green. In memory of their grandmother, a Calvernia Vincent Scholarship was established at Western.

Of the 10 sons, one was a banker, six were attorneys, two were teachers and one a businessman. Beverly M Vincent, a Brownsville attorney, was elected State Attorney General in 1936. He was elected U.S. Representative from Kentucky, 2nd District and served two terms there from 1937-1945. He was instrumental in getting Mammoth Cave recognized as a National Park. It seemed logical to have the annual reunions at this site each year.

Raymond L. Vincent, attorney, resided in Williamstown. In the early 50's, he represented the counties of Gallatin, Grant, and Owen as commonwealth's attorney.

The family members attending from this area were Jo Anne Vincent True and Rita Vincent Steger, whose father, Conrad L. Vincent, was a banker at Corinth for 43 years. Additional family members attending from this area were, Michael True and daughter, Lynn True-Mullins and daughter, and Caroline Hyden and daughter.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

Cash Mob gets local shoppers inside local businesses

Thirty-eight people shopped at the first every Cash Mob on Sept. 27, spending a minimum of $10 between Williamstown’s Mini Mall, HD Computers, Harold Moore’s Print and Frame Shop and Hobbies and Such.

Thirty-eight people spending $10 equals $380. But, and it is a big BUT, they actually spent over $1,000. The Mob total for the evening was near $600, but more people shopped during the following days.

Cash Mob, like a Flash Mob, is simple. It starts with a set date and location. Shoppers are then told what time to show up and then given their shopping destination. They simply agree to spend at least $10 at the mystery local shopping location.

The second Cash Mob, in Crittenden on Oct. 15, only had 16 shoppers. Shoppers were directed to The Blossom Basket and their neighbor, Dixie Treasures. Again, the shoppers spent more than their promised minimum.

The best part of the Cash Mob experience is that most of the shoppers, (local people), had never been inside any of the locally owned shops of the first two events.

“I’ve never been in here...I’m impressed and I am coming back,” said Linda Dunn, current Williamstown Kiwanis president.

The reaction was the same among many of the shoppers. They drive by these local, small businesses every day and have never stopped to see what is really inside.

“Look at this,” said Diane Beckham inside HD Computers. “I need this and it is cheaper than Wal-Mart.”

I have been preaching the idea of shopping the small, local businesses for years. I have been telling people to just go inside and look.

When the idea of the Cash Mob was presented to me I told the person I would do what I could do to entice local people into local small businesses. I also enticed H & R Block’s and Spears Foundation’s Candace Faulkner to lead the effort.

We have been told numerous times how great an idea the Cash Mob is and that we should keep having the events.

We don’t expect someone to make every event but we hope people put the effort into trying to make it, if you believe in the Cash Mob’s purpose. That purpose is for local people to help their local economy by shopping in small, local businesses.

Ten dollars a person, spent in a small business, makes a big difference. Maybe the best difference is knowing for sure many of our local businesses have items of interest and you can drive five miles down the road, rather than driving to Florence where you are buying similar items at higher prices.

Ken

Anyone can form his or her own Cash Mob.

When the family arrives or you have friends together, just pick one or more small local businesses, especially any you have never been inside, and go shop. It’s a treasure hunt. Take a day for yourself and explore local shops on your own. Or, come to one of our events.

Some folks have encouraged Candace and I to continue with organizing more events. We have four Cash Mobs scheduled between now and Christmas.

The next Cash Mob events include:

• Thursday, Nov. 1, 5:30 p.m.: The Cash Mob will meet at the Grant County Extension office, Baton Rouge Road. The extension office has offered Mobbers free drinks and food to get them in the mood. At the staging site the Shoppers Showcase will be going on offering shoppers lots of buying choices. Then the secret shopping locations will be revealed.

As at any Cash Mob event, your time and spending commitment can range from very little to as much as you want. Some Mobbers get the location, shop and spend in as little as 10 minutes and then go on to their other commitments. Others will leisurely enjoy the moment of discovery.

There will also be Cash Mobs on Nov. 15, Nov. 29 and Dec. 13. Watch for more details on those events.

What do the new state test scores really mean?

Kentucky holds schools and districts to high standards for educating children. In 2009, Kentucky’s General Assembly passed Senate Bill 1, which changed the state’s public education system. New, more rigorous standards were adopted, new tests were aligned to these standards, and the focus shifted to student readiness for life after high school. Kentucky was the first state to adopt the Common Core State Standards for math and language arts. These new standards were first taught in the 2011-2012 school year and were tested in May 2012.

In the past few days, Kentucky schools and districts have received their results and the results will be shared publicly on Nov. 2. It is important for parents and the community to understand that scores on these new assessments cannot be compared to previous state assessments. There are two reasons why this is the case. First, the standards being tested are different. Secondly, the range of scores has shifted from 0-140 to 0-100.

School and district scores are based on many measures of student performance on various tests. Points will be determined on how well a school performs on each measure. These measures include:

• Achievement: Students in grades 3-8 received a rating of novice, apprentice, proficient or distinguished on tests in reading and math. Various grades also tested in science, social studies, writing and language mechanics. High school student performance is based on end of course assessments in Algebra II, English 2, U.S. History, and Biology, as well as on-demand writing.

Gap: This will compare test results for low income students, special education students, African Americans, Hispanics, Native Americans, and Limited English Proficiency students to other students who are not in these categories.

• Growth: The measure of how much students’ scores are improving from one year to the next.

College/Career Readiness: Number of students determined on track (8th grade Explore scores) and ready for college/career (ACT scores).

Misty

Instructional Supervisor

• Graduation Rate: Based on how many students graduate within four years of high school.

Elementary school points are determined on the first three measures (30 percent achievement, 30 percent gap, and 40 percent growth). Middle school points are determined on the first four measures (28 percent each for Achievement, Gap, and Growth and 16 percent College/Career Readiness). High school points are determined on all five measures (20 percent for each category).

Once points are calculated using the above weights, an overall accountability score from 0-100 is produced. This number will be used to rank schools and districts to determine their classification. The three classifications are:

• Distinguished: The top 10 percent of schools and districts.

• Proficient: Schools and Districts in the 70th to 89th percentile

• Needs Improvement: Schools and districts below the 70th percentile.

With the release of the scores to schools and districts this week, teachers and administrators from across the state are busy pouring over the results to identify strengths and weaknesses. Data from these assessments will help schools identify improvement areas in order to reach Kentucky’s goal of every child proficient and prepared for success, which means college/career ready when students graduate high school. Parents will be receiving an individual report on the achievement of their children compared to school, state and national results, including information regarding academic strengths and weaknesses.

Once results have been released publicly, anyone wishing to view the scores may do so by visiting the school and district report cards on the Kentucky Department of Education website. This can be found at www.education.ky.gov. If you have additional questions regarding the new accountability system or a school’s or district’s performance, I encourage you to contact the school’s principal or the district’s assessment coordinator.

A WORD FOR OUR READERS

Choose city council members wisely

“Two public meetings, two votes, two different outcomes.” “I was against the project but now I am for it.” “I said then, it’s not my first choice for our city but where it’s located on the west side of 75, the impact would be extremely small to the city. If it was on the east side of 75, I wouldn’t be for this.”

These statements were from elected officials that voted in favor of “A” truck stop.

But the issue is not “A” truck stop. It is a text amendment to the zoning ordinance that permits truck stops in any highway commercial zone in the city as a conditional use. That means the board of adjustments is the only stop the next truck stop has to make to open. East side of 75 at Barnes Road? East or west side of Highway 36? Having served on the City of Williamstown’s Board of Adjustments for three years, I’ve learned that you just can’t say no, we don’t want that one, yes we want this one. You have to make a decision based on findings of fact. Allowing “A” truck stop on the west side of Barnes Road, would put the current board of adjustments in a difficult spot to say no to the next truck stop.

Several people spoke in favor of “A” truck stop at the last meeting, most of whom do not call the city home. City residents only have a chance to speak on Nov. 6. I ask you to choose your city council members wisely.

DOWN AND DIRTY

Move peonies in fall if blooms are scarce

The landscapes are constantly changing: from season to season and year to year. I love the seasonal changes in Kentuckiana, they keep us guessing. When I am tired of one season the next is about to begin. But there are other types of changes that affect the way we enjoy our gardens, over time sunny spots become shady as trees mature and landscapes evolve.

Many of our favorite flowering plants, both woody and herbaceous, require at least six hours of full sun in order to bloom well. When someone has a plant that won't bloom the first question I ask is about the amount of sun it receives. If you have this dilemma now is the time to make a decision about moving the plant to a sunnier location.

Red "eyes"

October is a great time to move herbaceous perennials and woody ornamentals because it is mild but there is still plenty of time for the plants to reestablish their root systems before the ground freezes, if the ground freezes. In fact, most woody plants can be transplanted easily in the winter as long as the ground is not frozen solid (and there are predictions of another mild winter this year.) The advantage is that the roots are still actively growing but the top growth is dormant so being moved is less stressful for the plant.

Herbaceous perennials are not good candidates for a winter move, however anytime in the fall is perfect. Perennials need to get out some new roots before winter because their roots are so much closer to the surface.

If you have ever asked the question, "why won't my peonies bloom?" there may be more to the problem than just the amount of sun they receive. In fact the most common reason for failure to bloom is not the light requirements but the depth requirements.

Peonies prefer to be left alone but sometimes we must dig, divide or move and fall is the time to do it.

Some plants require adequate chilling during the winter months and peonies are among them. If you know the plants are getting plenty of sunlight then likely the problem can be blamed on the fact the peony is planted too deep. If the "eyes" on the roots of the peony are planted deeper than two inches beneath the soil surface adequate winter chilling does not occur. The red "eyes" should be planted about an inch to an inch and a half inches beneath the soil. Once you dig your plant you will see exactly what I am talking about when I say red "eyes" on the roots...these eyes are the potential bloom for the following year.

Suitable for peonies

In order to create the best culture for your peonies choose a sunny, well-drained location with at least a three-foot diameter around the plant that is free of competition from other plants. Crowded plants never do as well because they compete for moisture and nutrients. Dig a deep hole so you can amend the soil if necessary to improve drainage. Clayey soil is not suitable for peonies if you want them to thrive in the long-term; amending planting holes for herbaceous plants is acceptable (although no longer recommended for trees and woody shrubs.) I advise filling the hole with water to check drainage and to make sure that the soil settles before you plant the peony...remember, you don't want the eyes of the plant to settle below that an inch and a half in depth.

Peonies are infamous for flopping over in the rain and wind. The weight of their blooms seems to be their own worst enemy. Fortunately, they make excellent cut flowers so you can alleviate some of the "weight" by bringing some indoors. Placing support grids over the plant in early spring before the plant starts growing helps maintain a neater plant, just be sure to place the support before the plant starts growing.

Setting examples for the next generation

It shouldn't surprise me but it still does. A few weeks back my wife had gone to Wal-Mart to pick up a few things and as she was checking out, she noticed a lady behind her. It really wasn't the lady she noticed but what the lady was wearing. This woman was wearing a vulgar shirt that said "Don't blank with me I @#$* back." Now the shirt didn't say "blank" but I will let you use your imagination to know what it said but it would have made even a salty sailor blush. My wife quickly checked out trying her best to not say something because my little girl was with her but she came home mad as a hornet telling me all about it. To make things worse, she told me that this woman was holding a little baby. My wife said, "What chance does that child have when this is the kind of decisions that her mother makes?"

Now this got me to thinking about that woman and about our society as a whole.

Pastor's Corner

BARRY ROBINSON

First, I thought about what business decided that making a shirt that said something like this would be a profitable venture worth investing your money in? I don't know how successful they were at selling these shirts, but I know that they at least sold one and that was one too many. This led me to my second thought: Who buys a shirt like that? Was it a gag gift? I hope so but even then, who is going through a rack of clothes and thinks of a friend and thinks, "Oh, I saw this shirt and I immediately thought of you."

And third, I have to wonder what was going through her mind when she decided to wear the shirt out in public? Was she going through her closet thinking, "Okay..now what goes good with my pajama bottoms (yes...she was wearing pajama bottoms out in public in the middle of the afternoon)...oh, this shirt looks good."

I thought about all this and about what it said about us as a people and I thought about her child and what her home life will be like. I thought about all those parents in the store who saw that shirt and had to explain to their child what that shirt meant.

But then another thought came to me. It was a thought that almost knocked me to the floor. What was that thought? It was this: It was for such a person that Jesus Christ died for.

The legacy we leave behind for our children, grandchildren, and this great nation is crucial. As I approach my 94th birthday, I realize this election could be my last. I believe it is vitally important that we cast our ballots for candidates who base their decisions on biblical principles and support the nation of Israel. I urge you to vote for those who protect the sanctity of life and support the biblical definition of marriage between a man and a woman. Vote for biblical values this November 6, and pray with me that America will remain one nation under God.

LIZ WAGONER

Candidate for Williamstown City Council

I have a deep passion for my small, close knit community. My goal as a member of the Williamstown City Council would be ensuring that our current infrastructure can support our community as well as plan for future growth. My focus areas include proper water capacity and treatment facility planning, sustainability of our natural resources and prudent fiscal management in all areas.

I am not in favor of the Truck Stop/Travel Center. I have the following concerns:

- (1) Changing the text amendment for the official zoning ordinance, by adding “additional” Permitted Uses to include Travel Centers, is not just making a change for the piece of land at the southwest intersection of I75 and Barnes Road. This amendment will change every piece of property that is currently zoned as H-C.
- (2) The revenue generation for the city via property taxes is projected to be $22,000 annually.
- (3) I have not seen proof that any restaurants (i.e. Bob Evans or Frisch’s) have Williamstown in their short-term or long-term growth plans. Businesses base their locations on rooftops/houses within a zip code, not the number of businesses.
- (4) I am also concerned with the traffic flow, the impact on the properties located on the west end of Barnes Road (a dead end street), and the impact to our locally owned convenient fuel companies. If current businesses are displaced, we lose that revenue. If property values are negatively impacted, tax revenues will decrease. If traffic flow is impacted, we may misguide the currently planned goal to make the Barnes Road exit a Medical Corridor. We must consider all impacts caused by this single decision.

Additional areas that I will focus on:

- (1) Our city needs a new water treatment plant. Funding for this need is moving forward as council has authorized the mayor to execute the paperwork to file for a loan application with the appropriate state resources.
- (2) Regarding The Ark Encounter, Answers in Genesis continues to work very hard to raise the required funds to initiate the development of this new location. I would encourage residents to visit the existing Answers in Genesis property (The Creation Museum) in Hebron. You will find that it is a very well maintained site with a very welcoming presence. As the donations continue to come in, Answers in Genesis continues to move forward with their plans.
- (3) Consider downtown Williamstown, we need to seriously consider what needs to change to get our county seat active with thriving businesses.

Let’s focus on the continued growth and retaining the positive environment for which our community is well known.

I would appreciate your vote on November 6.

The following is a paid political message

A message to the citizens of Williamstown and Grant County

There will be a negative impact upon our community with the construction of a truck stop, or truck stops, at the I-75 and Barnes Road intersection. Do you realize there could be a truck stop on both sides of the I-75 and Barnes Road exchange?

Don't sell-out short when you tell us that the Ark Encounter and all the growth it brings with it are nearer every week. We believe the tax revenue generated by a truck stop, at this location, hinders bigger and better growth and much larger tax revenues in the near future.

We ask Williamstown City Council members to vote for what is best for our community rather than what is best for them. We ask that the residents of Williamstown be polled on what they want rather than on council's personal agenda. You ran to "serve the people" so we ask that that promise be honored.

We ask that the truck stop not be built in the near proximity of St. Elizabeth Medical Center-Grant County or the nearby senior care facility.

Please contact your Williamstown Council and let them hear your voice.

Should I get Mom and Dad?

Wag, wag, wag.

Wait here, Chloe said, then giggled, realizing how silly her comment was. Within minutes, Mom, Dad, Chloe and our trainer, Rex, surrounded me.

Can you move, son?,Àù Dad asked.

Wag, wag.

Are you hurt, baby? Mom asked in her soothing voice.

Wag, wag.

I'll go get some equipment to get you out, Rex said and began to descend.

Woody, you know how Mom and Dad tell us when were in uncomfortable situations to think about pleasant things? Chloe said. Think about the adventures those brochures said were in Kentucky. Imagine looking down at the beautiful horse farms from a hot air balloon or a parachute.

Wag, wag, wag, wag, wag!

I would love to spend every weekend canoeing or kayaking, Mom said. We could go to Lake Barkley, Lake Cumberland, Nolin Lake, Dale Hollow or many other lakes.

Wag, wag, wag, wag!

Speaking of water, I love to go sailing at Cave Run or Kentucky Lake. Chloe said. Do you think we could sometime, Dad?

Absolutely, Dad said and even though I'm still walking bow-legged, I love to go horseback riding again.

Imagining us all walking bow-legged made me giggle. Everyone must have seen my body shaking because they giggled too. The tree started shaking. I hoped it would n't tall down.

Rex is climbing back up with some equipment, Chloe said, cheering.

Woody, stay real still and don't move, Rex instructed. I wagged my tail to let him know I understood. Then he spoke again. I'm going to drill a larger hole. Don, move until I tell you.

The drill was loud, but so were woodpeckers. I thought the woodpecker was being disrespectful to the tree by drilling a hole, but then I realized the woodpecker was designed to drill a hole in the tree, and the tree was designed to handle a hole by the woodpecker. I was disrespectful to the tree by putting my nose in the hole, getting stuck and making Rex damage the tree. I needed to apologize to Rex, my family, the tree and the woodpecker. I'd messed up his hole.

The drill stopped, and everything got quiet.

OK, pull that little snout of yours outta there, Rex said. I gently moved my nose, and it came out without a hitch.

Thathanthank, aaachool!

Everyone laughed. I meant to say thank you and I'm sorry but I sneezed instead. Thank you for getting me out of my mess, and I'm sorry for all the trouble I caused. I am sure I will have plenty of time to think about my mistake while I'm in the doghouse.

Dad smiled. I'm sure there will be a punishment for acting without thinking first, but I have a feeling you won't be doing anything like that again. I thanked Dad and told him again how sorry I was. He listened, winked at me and said, Let's make our descent, rest a while, eat some lunch and open the next card.

I realized how much respect I had for the birds, owls, squirrels and even cats. Being in the tree was wonderful, but moving around on the ground was easier. We ate a sandwich of tomatoes, cucumbers and cheese with a side of celery and kiwi. I didn't know if I was just famished or if I was getting used to our new eating habits, but it was delish. When we were finished, Chloe pulled out our next Rx card. She opened it, read it silently and cheered.

What is it, sis? I asked, curious about our next activity.

It's a riddle, Chloe said before reading aloud.

The moon is my father, the sea is my mother;

I have a million brothers, I die when I reach land.

What am I?

• Woody was in quite a pickle when his nose was stuck in the tree. Open up your local newspaper and see if there are any articles about people or animals being stranded. Cut them out and share them with others.

• When Woody was stuck in the tree, he began thinking of pleasant things to get his mind off of the unpleasant situation. Have you ever been in an unpleasant situation? How did you cope with it?

• Due to Woody's predicament, Woody couldn't speak. He could only answer by wagging his tail. Make a list of all the ways a person can communicate with others without speaking.

• Woody gained so much respect for owls, birds, squirrels, and even cats. Make a list of what species make their home in trees.

• Look at the illustration in today's chapter and draw your own illustration. Work and Dream like a big dog!

ABOUT OUR NATION

Provide your name _____ Phone# _____

Question # 3-a (If choices are available, pick one)

(Background Information) The Declaration of Independence is the foundation document of the USA. It sets the direction, intent, ideals and beliefs of our Founders. They had bet everything when they revolted against the British Empire. But the war had already been started. Britain had thought the Americans would not fight and victory would be won in a short time. But the Americans did fight.

A little more than one year before the Declaration of Independence was signed, on June 15, 1775, George Washington (age 43) was named the commanding General of the American Army—there was no Navy. But after a bloody six year war, with a rag-tag army, the Americans won. George Washington was not a trained army general but he read books, asked questions, used non British methods, and lost many battles, but he persisted and thanks to 'Providence' finally won the war. However, after the war, things were NOT so great for the newly freed States.

- During the Revolutionary War what document (agreement) did the states have by which they conducted the Federal Government? (Articles of Confederation, Washington Agreement, War Agreement)
- Was this Agreement binding upon the various States? (Y/N)
- General George Washington continually asked the Congress for more supplies for his men? (T/F)
- This had a profound effect on the General's opinion about a need for a limited but strong General (Federal) Government (T/F)
- During this time, between the end of the war by the Treaty of Paris in 1783, to the year 1787, the States acted as independent nations and did not get along with their neighboring States. (T/F)
- Many of the Founders felt that the 'Agreement' of the States had to be changed so they called for a Convention at Philadelphia in 1787. (T/F)
- On September 17, 1787 the delegates submitted a document to Congress and thence to the States for the ratification. This document is called the _____ of the United States.
(Constitution Philadelphia Accord Supreme Law)
- George Washington (age 57) was inaugurated President of the United States on April 30, of what year?
(1776, 1802, 1789)
- Near the end of his second term, President Washington submitted his famous Farewell Address on September 17. What was the year? (A new President was to be elected that year.)
(1796, 1802, 1776) Hint: election year is not the same as inauguration year.
- Ten years after he was inaugurated the first President, George Washington, died (age 67) in his room at his home, Mount Vernon, on December 14; of what year?
(1790, 1799, 1812)
- The two Foundational Documents of the United States are the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. (True or False?)

Concerning the Constitution of the United States:

- How many Articles are in the Constitution? (120, 65, 7)
- At this year of 2012, how many Amendments have been made? (75, 55, 27)
- The First Ten Amendments are known as the Bill of Rights. (True or False?)
- The First Amendment is one of the most powerful to protect the people's rights, and it begins with the words, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; ..." (True or False?)

ROBBERY

Haggard said she saw pharmacy owner Jason Wallace putting the pills into a bag for the robber. Wallace calmly asked Haggard to wait at the other end of the store, according to Haggard. Before she made it to the other end and turned around, the suspect was gone. Seconds later, Wallace went outside to try to see which way the suspect went and notified police that the vehicle went west onto Barnes Road. The stolen vehicle was located a short time later in the 2000 block of Barnes Road without the suspect. Kentucky State Police dispatch then received a call about a suspicious person at Cordova Road (KY 36) and US 25 in southern Grant County. Grant County Sheriff's Deputy Brian Maines located Hager walking near the 1500 block of Cordova Road and made the arrest. "When I cut into the drive, he takes off running behind a group of cedar trees and he stopped behind them and I couldn't see him," Maines said. "When I started approaching, I could see him crouch down under there and I ordered him out and get him to start walking toward me." Maines said Hager told him that he was walking from his grandmother's house to a friend's house, a statement the deputy knew to be false. Once the suspect was secured by other deputies, Maines said he walked by the cedar trees and located four pill bottles matching the description of those taken at Grant County Drugs. "I think he just hid thinking I would go away," Maines said. "But once I approached, I think he had been on the run long enough that he was tired." The incident remains under investigation by KSP Detective Scott Lengle. Hager is lodged in the Grant County Detention Center. Anyone with any information please call Kentucky State Police at 859-428-1212. Haggard said the robbery was an experience that rattled her. After the robbery, she said Wallace apologized to her for being rude by asking her to move to the other side of the store. Haggard laughed at the unnecessary apology.

"I told him that I needed to give him a hug," she said. "When I told him, 'I think you probably saved my life,' I started crying." Haggard broke down again on her way home and did not sleep very well that night. "I don't care what anybody says, it could have been a toy gun, but the threat was real," she said. Haggard returned to Grant County Drugs the following day to pick up her prescription.

TRACTOR

Ammerman said Ruber was selfless and someone who always looked for ways to help others. "He was always my go-to-guy. I could pick up the phone and ask and it would be done or even just get his opinion on how to do something. He was just always there when you picked up that phone," Ammerman said. Ruber, the son of Allen Ray and Wanda Ruber, owned Ruber's Landscaping and Lawn Care. He was a farmer and active with farm organizations such as Grant County Farm Bureau and the Grant County Cattlemen's Association. He served as vice president of the Grant County

Fair Board and was a member of Sherman Full Gospel Church. He was also actively involved in coaching his five children in various sports such as football. Ammerman said while Ruber had a goofy sense of humor and loved nothing better than to pull a joke on someone, he was also generous, without seeking recognition. "I know for a fact there was a child, maybe more, who didn't have money to pay for football registration so Craig paid for it," Ammerman said. "I don't know how many gallons of gas and hours he devoted to the turf behind Grant County Middle School and it was all because he wanted the kids to have a nice place to play."

Ruber is survived by his wife, Christa Worthington Ruber and five children, Cayman, Caylee, Carrigan, Chesney and Colt, as well as a brother, Jeff. Funeral services will be 11 a.m. on Nov. 2 at Sherman Full Gospel. For complete obituary information, see page 7 of this issue. For his family and friends, his smile and friendliness will be missed. "I heard someone describe him as the kind of person that even if you were in the worst mood and you came across him, he would aggravate you the whole time, but by the time you left him, you'd be in a better mood. He'll definitely be missed by many people," Ammerman said.

JAILER

Peeples referred all questions to his attorney, who did not provide a response to the new lawsuits by press time on Oct. 30. Bailey began as chief deputy around the same date as Peeples began his tenure as jailer at the Grant County Detention Center. During Bailey's employment, he alleges that Peeples and others at the jail engaged in illegal conduct, which he documented to Peeples in a March 26, 2012, letter. "Shortly after receipt of (Bailey's) letter, Peeples began to retaliate against Bailey, fabricating a story that (Bailey) had inappropriate physical conduct with a detention center inmate," the lawsuit states. "Peeples then began broadly circulating that story among detention center personnel, the community and the media." Bailey, who denied the allegations, was placed on administrative leave until a full investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigations and the Kentucky State Police cleared him of any wrongdoing in June 2012, according to the lawsuit. However, Bailey claimed that due to the false allegations, he and his family were and continue to be "ridiculed, harassed and humiliated within the community." Bailey met with state police and FBI investigators to inform them of the ongoing illegal activities at the jail. After being cleared, Bailey returned to work and met with Peeples, who allegedly yelled and threatened Bailey, stating that "You know you can't come back to work here." When Bailey asked why he could not work at the jail, Peeples suggested it was the Grant County Fiscal Court and/or county attorney that intended to discharge Bailey, according to the lawsuit. Peeples then allegedly ordered Bailey to leave the premises and Bailey complied.

We have to work on our image and our reputation. We have to do that by changing our knowledge, our discipline and our accountability.

- Terry Peeples
Grant Co. Jailer, shortly after taking office in Jan. 2011

Hacker, who filed the second lawsuit, alleges she was informed during her employment about a physical sexual relationship between Peeples and a female detention center employee. After Peeples became aware of Hacker's knowledge of the relationship, he made inappropriate sexually harassing advances on Hacker, according to the lawsuit. Upon rejecting Peeples advances, Hacker alleges Peeples began treating her negatively and eventually fired her. According to Hacker, she never received a write-up for violating any policy and never received any notification that she was violating jail procedure. She claims that Peeples failed to provide sufficient training, including training regarding contraband. Hacker was fired on May 16 by Peeples "based on the pretext that she provided contraband to a maximum security inmate," according to the lawsuit. "In reality, (Hacker) provided a sealed chocolate milk that was purchased from the detention center canteen to a minimum security inmate," the lawsuit states. Hacker claims she was unaware of any contraband violation because she witnessed her co-workers, including her superiors, providing items to inmates from the canteen on multiple occasions. Hacker is suing Peeples on claims of sexual harassment, retaliation and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Bailey and Hacker are seeking punitive damages. Peeples, who replaced Steve Kellam as jailer, ran his campaign in 2010 based on changing the community's view and the reputation of the jail. "We have to work on our image and our reputation," he said shortly after taking office. "We have to do that by changing our knowledge, our discipline and our accountability. The big things we do great. It's the little attention to details that will get you. That's what we don't do very well."

Help Wanted.

"With Election Day drawing near, I want to take this opportunity ask for your vote and support.

This has been an exciting adventure. I want to thank everyone for the courtesy and kindnesses you have shown Dewayne and me. My campaign has been a family affair. My parents, Dewayne's family, our two sons, our daughters-in-law and grandchildren have enjoyed campaigning together.

Candidly, politics is proving to be a dirty business. It doesn't have to be this way. We are all neighbors and we should want what is best for our state and communities. I certainly do.

When I get to Frankfort, you have my word that I will do my best to elevate the discussions. I will work to end the partisan bickering and name calling!"
